BOSTON WINS THIRD BATTLE IN THE NINTH

Alexander Loses His Second Game in World's Series by the Score of Two to One.

LEONARD HOLDS THE PHILLIES

"Duffy" Lewis Brings in Winning Run by Sending Ball Over Second Base.

NEBRASKAN PASSES SPEAKER

PHILA. 1001000000-130
Boston 0001000001-261
BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The big batter faced the big pitcher at a crucial moment of the world's series between the Philadelphia Nationals and the Boston Americans today—and the pitcher declined the challenge. It was in the thrilling last half of the ninth. The score of the third game of the world's series was a tie.

Harry Hooper, fleet of foot, was on second base, with only one out when Tris Speaker, of Hubbard City, Tex., stepped to the plate and turned a determined face toward Grover Cleveland Alexander, the fighting hope of the Phillies, who was in the worst plight of his pitching career.

He Passes Speaker.
Big "Alex" looked at Hooper, gave heed to the crowd, saw speaker's war club gleaming in the late afternoon sun. His mind was made up. The first ball went far wide of the plate. Likewise the second and the third. The maddened throng knew what this meant and they howled in derisive delight as the fourth straight pitch the star centerfielder of the Red Sox trotted to first.

This put the issue squarely up to Hoblitzell, lanky guardian of the Sox's inner corner, and Alexander faced him with more confidence. The yelling of the crowd and the strain of striving to stave off defeat seemed momentarily to tell on the pitcher. However, he had difficulty in finding the plate.

"Duffy" Lewis Up.
It was three and one on "Hobby," when the first baseman sent a slow bouncer toward second. The crowd feared a double play and the lusty howling died away. But Speaker had taken a flying start with Hooper and the Boston runner was safe on third and second, as Niehoff tossed "Hobby" out at first.

The chorus of 42,000 of his home folks was calling upon him with a clamor that carried far from the wide green reaches of the Braves' field to carve for himself a niche in the base ball hall of fame.

"Duff" had already made two hits in three times to the plate, two stinging blows beyond the Phillies' line of inner defense, but this decidedly healthy batting average of .567 did not deter him in the least. Alexander, stout of heart, fighting as he never fought before, calling upon all the reserve cunning of his strong right arm, put into his first pitch all the will he could command and sent the sphere speeding on its way.

Home Comes Hooper.
Lewis met the ball with a smacking crack and it flashed over second base, a gray, white streak that no defender could reach, and Hooper raced across the plate with a historic run. It gave the game to the Red Sox by two to one, and the advantage of the series by the same margin of games won and lost, two for the Red Sox and one for the Phillies.

With the "big fellow" defeated in this "breaking" game of the 1915 conflict between the title-bearers of the two major leagues the Boston players and their supporters tonight are willing to wager at almost any odds that the home team will win the series.

The Phillies had placed their hope in Alexander, but upon him in advance the burden of winning three of the games of the series. One failure on his part meant a serious setback to their chances. But tonight Manager Pat Moran of the visitors is far from admitting the failure. The Phillies are not yet through. (Continued on Page Four Column One.)

ACTIVITY IN WESTERN ZONE

VIENNA, Oct. 11.—(Via London.)—Austro-German troops advancing from Belgrade, have beaten back the Serbians, both southeast and southwest of that city. This was announced today by the Austrian war office.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The Austro-German armies which crossed the Danube and Save rivers and occupied Belgrade are meeting with stubborn resistance at the Serbian advance defenses, but have not yet come in contact with the main Serbian forces.

The Serbians' plan of campaign depends considerably upon the amount of assistance they will receive from allied troops, but it is not believed that they will attempt, in any event, to make a decided stand north of the mountain range near Kragujevac, which they already have proved to be a line offering superb facilities for defense.

Telegrams from the Balkans, though not minimizing the seriousness of the Serbian position, reflect a tone of cheerful confidence in the ability of the allies ultimately to check the Austro-German invasion and successfully meet any future attack from the side of Bulgaria. The national danger, say these telegrams, has united Serbia as never before, and throughout the country men normally unfit for the regular army and women and old men are arming for the defense of their country.

The population of Macedonia Serbia has gathered into bands with the object of repulsing a possible Bulgarian attack. In addition to 20,000 Serbian, 1,000,000 Serbians of both sexes and all ages, are said to be ready to dispute all attempts at Austro-German-Bulgarian conquest. The suspense attending the initiation of the Bulgarian campaign is puzzling military writers here, but it is considered as probably due to the fact that the country still required several weeks to complete mobilization when the Russian ultimatum was sprung upon it.

In the western theater of the war, the German attack in the vicinity of Loos appears to have subsided, having accomplished nothing except the securing of a temporary partial footing in some trenches from which the assailants of the allied line were afterwards expelled. Since October 4, according to Field Marshal Sir John French, the only change of consequence on the Loos front has been a steady gain of ground by the British between Hill No. 70, which is the key to the situation.

Battle Rages for Two Days. The Austrians and Germans encountered desperate resistance from the Serbians at Belgrade and for two days a terrible battle with bayonets raged in the streets before the capture of the city was completed. Describing these operations the Aszet says:

"Our gain of ground and the breadth of our march into Serbia continues to increase. Despite all efforts of the Serbians, in whose ranks are British officers, and who use British artillery, the river crossing has been accomplished according to the plan made."
